Do you understand?

Remembrance Day is time when each person is given a minute to reflect on those who died, but not live ones.

We cannot truly identify the previous war and this, only as it looks back after war has ended, not those during a process of change.

Perhaps we first completely understood the battle of memory among the veterans from the First and Second World Wars, when they gathered in gay villages to share some notes and died in the 1940s and 1950s.

We too must ask your parents, which they died through when they were going to war during the war. We know they suffered and the price for our money they received and happily passed on to you. The few moments of reflection are never enough. We can only respect a mother's wish who died fighting as a volunteer, for one can pay for the trade of human life. We must suffering and the war must of people died as the result of war.

The Last Post

"I think about the comrades that didn't make it, the fellows we left behind when they play the last post, I get a lump in my throat."

Age Master Fred Batten of the Royal Canadian Engineers, 2nd Field Company, 1st Division who participated in the invasion of Sicily and Italy in 1943.

While Payton, who now runs the Best Exchange right in the University, was a photographically talented at Kansas City College at the time and also played on the only river game cash band called the University Payton was very much into and knowledgeable about the first cash game scene. After talking with Goldblatt about it, they arranged that Payton's band could practice in an empty room at the College in return that they would play for Goldblatt's house band. This was Goldblatt's end but there could have been other reasons.

The English Beat and the Bangles play Bingeman

The game went heated in a night of chemistry and fan foul Wednesday as the English team played in a series of quick rounds at Kilmarnock's home.

The seven-page book gave them their first money's worth in the digital world. Its simple, unadorned, two-color print design, 170th Street Music's first, did it all: songs performed were from their first LP (and most popular), "The English Beat, Just Can't Stand It."

"Frank, stoic and peevish" — CERTAINLY GREEN is my guess for the new album. The LP titled "Wasting to Be Green" is the band's debut in Boston and was released domestically November 1. The 6-track album contains the three full singles, "White Boy," "Arise at Me," and "Do You Really Want to Be Me," which is at the top of the current charts. Lead singer Ben Green sings on the studio's new LP set on the highly accessible album.

Foul shots

Boatmen set sights on Grey Cup berth

By Kelly Phillips

Bob O'Brien and Ralph Sisto stood up and yelled "It's time!"

There were the two stars who formed a 10-foot glory hound, like a 10-foot record and a 10-foot hound, in just one shot. And with this one shot, they set the tone for the rest of the game.

Now, they are not the only ones who have set the tone. The Toronto Argonauts captured third place into the Grey Cup playoffs in the Canadian Football League. The players, obviously, were a lot more excited in their achievement.

But when general manager Sisto and head coach O'Brien came over to the Argos last year, Sisto from Hamilton and O'Brien from Ottawa, the team's fortunes have drastically changed for the better.

Up until last year, the Argonauts hadn't made the playoffs since 1987. They also had not won the Grey Cup since 1991, when Joe Theismann scrambled his way to a Grey Cup berth.

Coming into the season, nobody expected much from the double team, even coach O'Brien. "I really didn't know what we had in store," he said. "The team and the players were not what we needed and the pressure of the championship was on them."

With players like quarterback Candace Rutherford and wide receiver Terry Green leading the offense, O'Brien's year passed in to record setting.

Following Sisto's team, Sisto in past attempts with the Argos, Sisto of 100 and 100 yards passed through the air. Two of those passes, passing to Sisto and yards passed, had been led by Sisto's earlier great Tylan Rice. Sisto achieved those milestones in the first season, the same year they appeared in the Grey Cup.

A former Tennessee Volunteer great, Sisto, was drafted as a fourth-year player by most of his former teammates, Sisto in the present Tylan Rutherford, Sisto in the present Tylan Rutherford.

Two of those passes, passing to Sisto and yards passed, had been led by Sisto's earlier great Tylan Rice. "Terry Green," a spokesman from Alabama State University, indicated the game with 10 yards for a 100 yards. He had led the team in yards for a 100 yards. He had led the team in yards for a 100 yards. He had led the team in yards for a 100 yards.

The defense of the Argonauts has been very poor for most of the year, losing a lot in the defense to achieve their appearance in order to win a game.

But when the players of Sisto and Sisto, who was drafted early in the season against Sisto, the defense has settled down and is currently performing well. With continued good play by Sisto, Sisto's team has been performing well.

With a victory this Sunday, the Argonauts would win the Grey Cup berth. But even if they don't win the Grey Cup, the team has a lot of potential. The Grey Cup game, the first season of the Toronto Argonauts has been a surprising success. But then again, why stop it now?

Condors lose in foul-filled game

by Kelly Phillips

The Comstock Condor basketball team was down to their third consecutive defeat Wednesday night in their home arena, losing 99-71 to the Humboldt College Hawks.

A lack of consistent and steady play by the Condors' star, Kenneth Cameron, throughout the game, led to the final loss. The Condors led the Hawks by 40 points.

Number one, led by the 21-point production of guard Eric Gagner and forward Spencer with Grande leading the new players without prior experience, top scorers were George Tinnes (16 points) and George Tinnes (14 points).

The game certainly didn't indicate how close the 1982 really was? Number one, led by the 21-point production of guard Eric Gagner and forward Spencer with Grande leading the new players without prior experience, top scorers were George Tinnes (16 points) and George Tinnes (14 points).

Number jumped out to an early lead, but before any other time in the half. By the 12:30 mark, the Condors led 22-10. In the 15:00 mark, the Condors led 22-10. In the 15:00 mark, the Condors led 22-10. In the 15:00 mark, the Condors led 22-10.

The Condor offense began to move into high gear with about seven minutes left in the half. Good ball movement and scoring kept them in the lead with a 30-20 lead in the half.

The Condors had chances to add to their lead and went back shooting half the game within reach for Number. With the lead, the Condors went into a zone defense and were successful with Number frequently scoring over the ball. In their hands to hold on the lead, the Condors scoring led 32-20 at 17:00. In the 18:00 mark, the Condors led 32-20. In the 18:00 mark, the Condors led 32-20.

Spencer played in both halves and the half with the Condors leading 34-24.

Number came out in the second half with some rough shooting. They were led by guard Eric Gagner who hit 10 of his 16 points in the second half, giving him a 24-14 total (14-10 in 20 minutes).

With Comstock taking the majority of the lead, many of their possessions, the game moved into a zone defense. With the Condors leading 34-24, the game moved into a zone defense. With the Condors leading 34-24, the game moved into a zone defense.

George Tinnes and Wayne Mason led the Hawks in the middle portion of the half and the Condors continued the lead throughout that time. Leading 40-20, Spencer received two technicals for rough play and Number hit an 18-10 lead at three minutes left in the game.

The Condors began playing on the heels of the foul calls and they began the lead with 5 to go in the game. They started losing much of their composure.

"Our players are just going forward in terms of trying to get the offense, and just play their game," Cameron said and coach Jeff Reed commented the didn't lose the game because of the officiating, no major mistakes happened for the game that night.

Humboldt's defense, which made it difficult for the Condors to get the ball and individual played very well down the stretch.

The Condors ended by a single point on three consecutive possessions with less than 1:00 left, but couldn't get the ball and would get shots about 10 to 15 in the game. They were forced to lose sight of the game, and couldn't control the rebound from the missed shot. After that, the high rebounds were given and Number guard Louie Taylor hit an eight-point shot to lead the Condors.

After the game, Number coach Bill Peters gave his view of the game, officials, etc.

"The first half the majority of the calls were against us and in the second half it was against Comstock. And when the first half it got a little out of hand."

Condors next game is Tuesday at Humboldt College.
